...but I can unhesitatingly evoke the hissing sound of an onion browning in oil, the syncopated rhythm of a knife mincing vegetables, the burble of the boiling pot into which unfortunate shellfish will fall in an instant, the crrrack of nuts being shelled, the patient song of the mortar grinding seeds; the liquid notes of wine being decanted into goblets, the chink of silver, crystal, and china on the table, the melodious murmur of after-dinner conversation, the satisfied sighs and the nearly imperceptile guttering of candles lighting the dinning room. These sounds for me have an effect nearly as powerful as the voice...
